

Emeritus Day 2019 Schedule

10:00 am – 11:15 am: Coffee with pastries and a chance to visit with the numerous campus organizations that provide benefits to Emeritus Faculty (Ballroom A and Grand Hallway)

- Tiger One has a representative to take a picture for your Official Clemson ID (cost is $30).
- The Brooks Center has representatives to answer questions about their amazing productions and to tell you about how you can become involved.
- Pickens County United Way has representatives to describe the work of the Emeritus College's official charity. Thank you to them for providing the pastries and coffee!!
- Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) representatives invite emeriti to join OLLI and to teach courses.
- University Libraries representatives will answer questions and provide assistance with library materials and services.
- Parking Services 2019-20 decal application forms are available. You will need your vehicle tag numbers and your Handicapped Permit number (if you have one).
- Clemson Computing and Information Technology (CCIT) representatives are here to describe services to emeritus faculty and answer your technology questions!
- Faculty Senate representatives will provide information on the Senate's activities

11:30 am – 12:00 pm: New Emeritus Faculty presentation of Scrolls- BellSouth Auditorium (adjacent to Ballroom) President Clements and Provost Jones presentation to 2018-2019 emeriti.

12:00 pm – 1:00 pm: DEA Presentation and Luncheon (Ballroom) Mixed Green Salad, Chicken Piccata, Buttermilk Mashed Potatoes, Vegetable Medley, Chocolate Mousse with Raspberry Coulis

1:00 pm – 1:15 pm: Emeritus College Member Recognitions

1:15 pm – 1:45 pm: Keynote Address: Honoring the Team – Dr. Dori Helms, Professor Emerita and Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs

All times are approximate

Doris R. Helms, PhD

Doris R. Helms served Clemson University as a Professor, Department Chair, Associate Dean, and Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs. She currently serves as member of the Board of Trustees for South Carolina State University.

During her career as a biologist, Dr. Helms worked with science teachers throughout South Carolina and received the Charles H. Townes Award for service to Science and Mathematics Education in SC, the SC Science Council and SC Hall of Science and Technology Award and a Commendation from the State Department of Education for her contributions to teacher education in SC. In 2006, Dori was made an Honorary Clemson Alumnus.

She received the Martha Kime Piper Award, a state-wide award for leadership among Women in Higher Education. She served as the Chair of the College Board's Science Advisory Committee, Co-Chair of the College Board's Science Pacesetter Initiative, and as Chief Reader in Advanced Placement Biology. Helms is the author of numerous publications including several nationally adopted laboratory manuals.

President Emeritus James F. Barker stated, "For 40 years, she has been a teacher, mentor, breaker of glass ceilings and an inspiration to thousands of young people who have gone on to successful careers in science, education, and academia. Almost every good idea we've had over the past decade to improve Clemson as an academic institution has come from the creative mind of Dori Helms." Examples include: Class of 1963 Bridge Program; Creative Inquiry; Class of 1956 Academic Success Center; teaching 5,000 students in her biology classes; 400 faculty tenured during her service as provost, 50,000 students graduated, 40% of all living alumni and most importantly, she is responsible for the development of the Emeritus College at Clemson University in 2003. Dori and her husband, Carl, divide their time between Seabrook Island and Bishop Gadsden (BG) Retirement Community.