

LTC Dave Scherrep

U. S. Army Retired

Donated Chest of Drawers

LTC Scherrep is a proud member of the Emeritus College and a retired U.S. Army Lieutenant Colonel. He retired from Clemson University in 2002 as the Associate Director of Cooperative Education. LTC Scherrep was primarily responsible for the placement of electrical and computer engineering, computer science, and packaging science students. While working in the Co-op office, he also worked with employers ranging from the CIA to Walt Disney World. LTC Scherrep is the past president of the South Carolina co-op Association and the South Carolina Co-op and Placement Association. He is also a graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College.

The 10-drawer chest donated to the Emeritus college by LT. Colonel Scherrep was hand crafted by a carpenter in Greenwood, SC. While employed at Lander University, LTC Scherrep used this chest primarily to display his collection of WWII medals and decorations. Funds to craft this piece of furniture were provided by LTC Scherrep's late grandmother, Ethel Davies, formerly of Plymouth England.
